National Health IT week - Get informed and get involved

Each year, organizations across the country recognize National Health IT week. It was created to promote work taking place across the country and encourage a national dialogue on the advancement of health IT. In Oregon, the state and its stakeholders are working across settings to advance health information exchange. We encourage you to get involved and help us increase awareness about health IT in Oregon. Please share this message with someone in your network. A forward to a friend tab is located at the bottom of this email and interested parties can sign-up to receive Oregon HIT updates on emerging programs, as well as opportunities to get involved.
